HAIR CUT DIDN'T SUIT Foreigner and a Soldier Calls at the Police Station.

"I thought," said Sergeant Boylan at police headquarters last night, "that I had heard almost everything in the way of languages that ever happened, but a man came in here to-night that beat me. He talked a mixture of English, Spanish, German, Irish and everything else I guess. After about three hours I managed to guess that he wanted to tell me he had served five years in the regular army; that a few days ago he went to a colored barber and got his hair cut; that the barber left a little bunch of hair on one side of his head. which he claimed made him look like a Zulu; that he returned to-night and told the barber about it and was thrown out. Every man on the force that came into the office had a round with him and that's the way we sized it up." Captain Dawson, finally becoming tired of the man's presence, told him in severe tones to "get out." With the habitual salute, due to evident military training, the order was obeyed.

RESORTS ARE RAIDED.

At Three Places a Total of Thirty-One People Are Arrested.

Keepers and frequenters of sporting re sorts played in rather hard luck last night. The police found a poker game in a back room down stairs at 311 West Washington street. Patrick Fuller, the keeper of the place, claimed they were "playing a little cinch for the drinks," but the excuse didn't work. Ten were sent to the police station. On Indiana avenue ten colored crap shooters were corralled by the police in a room occupied by Richard Singleton. They are charged with visiting a gambling house. A resort over 126 West Market street was found occupied by five women and six men. They are charged with a violation of the laws relative to morality. Several other resorts were visited by the police in anticipation of a "catch," but no more arrests were made.

Parrish Taken to Clawfordsville. Joseph Parrish, the saloon keeper at 2818 Northwestern avenue, who is charged, at Crawfordsville, Ind., with criminal assault apon Lulu Wallace, thirteen years of age, of this city, was taken to Crawfordsville yeserday morning. Parrish has told conflicting stories of his actions and the police here, who know him, believe the reports from Crawfordsville and say that he undoubtedly stands little chance of beating Leathers, of the Superior Court. TWO BIG DAMAGE SUITS

WHICH RECALL RECENT ACCIDENTS AT THE GRADE CROSSINGS.

The Death of Bennie Doran and the Shaffer Family Accident-Grand Jury Report-Court Cases.

In the Superior Court yesterday Henry S. Doran began an action for damages against the Lake Erie & Western Railway Company on account of the killing of his little son, Bennie Doran, on Sept. 29 last. The child, who was nine years of age, was on his way home from school when the accident happened. He was run down by an engine and "cut" of freight cars near the Intersection of Lewis and Twentieth streets with the railroad. The engine was backing the cars and, it is charged, they were running at the rate of fifteen miles an hour, which was in violation of an ordinance regulating the speed of trains. It is also claimed that the engine was not properly equipped to connect with the air-brakes. The charge is made that had the proper equipment been attached and the speed of the train been less the accident might have been prevented. The plaintiff is demanding $10,000 damages.

Lucretia E. Stephens. She is suing the C., of June 27 last. She was driving with her husband, Samuel Stephens, her little grandvehicle in which they were riding was struck by a train. Hazel Shaffer was killed and the others were all injured. Mrs. Stephens was thrown on the pilot of the locomotive and carried nearly a square. She says she was permanently injured. She suffered injuries to her spine, she says, and says the safety-gates were open when they started across the track and that the men in the switchhouse gave no warning of stolen goods. THE SUITS ARE DISMISSED.

A Controversy Involving Some Insurance Policies Is Settled. In the Circuit Court yesterday the suits of William A. Buchanan and John Martz against the Equitable Life Insurance Society of the United States and John F. Kight were dismissed by agreement. The plaintiffs are Montgomery county farmers. They brought suit against the Equitable Society and Kight, claiming the latter, who was the agent of the Equitable, had induced them to give up the policies they held in the State Life Insurance Company and take out policies in his company. They claimed that Kight represented to them that their policies in the State Company were void and that the company was insolvent. They assigned their policies in the Company to Kight, taking in exchange policies in the Equitable. They averred that they paid a much higher yearly premium in the Equitable Society than in the State Company. It was also charged that Kight received from them the balance of unearned premiums on the policies they turned over to him from the State Com pany. They claimed that they afterward learned that Kight misrepresented the financial condition of the State Company to them, and they asked the court to set aside the entire transaction. The plaintiffs, in dismissing their suits, recovered their policies in the State Company, and the Equitable Company pays the costs of the litigation and pays the plaintiffs $150 in money. The suit brought by Kight against Buchanan and Martz and the State Company, in which he claimed there was $450 due him on account of the transfer of policies, was also dismissed. THREE PEOPLE BOUND OVER To Await Action by the Grand Jury

-Charles Wrade's Case. Frank Davis, colored, who was arrested for entering the rooms of John H. Rodibaugh, rear 873 Virginia avenue, was bound over to the grand jury yesterday from Police Court after an examination.

Alfred Harrington, charged with grand larceny, waived examination and was held to the grand jury. Harrington was arrested on a charge of loitering and had in his possession two rings which were identified as property stolen from the home of Edward Rosenburg, 929 Huron street. Jennie Bennett, the woman charged with highway robbery, waived examination and was bound over to the grand jury and bond Charles Wrade, 1315 Barth avenue charged with petit larceny, was released on suspended judgment. His brother made affidavit that he had stolen an overcoat from his father and pawned it for $2.50.

THE BIG FOUR SUES To Enjoin the County Treasurer from Collecting Township Taxes.

Suit was yesterday brought by the Big Four Railroad Company to enjoin County Treasurer Schmidt from collecting about $640 of taxes assessed against the railroad company in different townships of the county for township purposes. In this city $190 was levied for township purposes. As to this amount the railway company contends that property in Indianapolis is not taxable for township purposes. As to the other townships named in the complaint, the request for injunction is based on the cortention that the levy for township purposes exceeds 3 cents on each $100. It is claimed that the law limits the levy for township purposes in this county, outside of Center township, to 3 cents. It is said by attornevs that this claim could be made as to all other kinds of property should the contention of the railroad company be held good by the court. THE WIFE IN ENGLAND,

And She Was Willing for Henry Mathews to Have a Divorce. Henry Mathews, former proprietor of a 5-and-10-cent store, on West Washington street, was yesterday granted a divorce from Lizzie Mathews, who is now in England. The decree was granted by Judge dence showed that Mathews and his wife 'It's fastened on to me."

did not get on well together, and she finally left him and went to England, where she formerly resided. A letter was read to the court by Attorney Dryer, who represented Mrs. Mathews. The letter was from the defendant, who wrote that she did not care for Mathews any more, and was willing for hira to have a divorce if he wanted it.

Trouble Caused by a Dam, The case of James D. Maxwell and others against Augustus F. Shirts and others was brought to the Supreme Court on appeal from the Boone County Circuit Court yesterday. Maxwell is the tenant of William V. Rooker, and on the farm of Rooker he erected a dam, which ran all of the water over onto his neighbor, Augustus Shirts. Shirts brought suit for damages, and sought to have the nuisance abated. He recovered a judgment for $25, and the court ordered that the nuisance be abated. Maxwell then appealed to the Supreme Court.

TO BE ASKED

TO AUTHORIZE THE PAYMENT OF $609,000 FOR SQUARE 36.

It Is Thought the Matter Can Be Disposed of Quickly-Assistant Secretary Taylor's Plans.

The statement that a check for $609,000 for the payment of the Indianapolis postoffice A suit growing out of a tragic happening site has been forwarded to this city proves at Delaware street and the Union tracks to have been an error. What was done was last summer was brought yesterday by Mrs. to refer a request on behalf of the government to the court here to hold up the decree H. & I., the C., H. & D. and the Indian- in the condemnation proceedings until Conapolis Union Railway companies for $25,- | gress can have an opportunity to authorize 900 damages. The accident in which the the payment of the full $609,000 involved. Acplaintiff was injured happened on the night | cording to the terms of the bill authorizing the construction of the building here, only $250,000 is available at the present time. Such child, Hazel Shaffer, and a daughter. In | $250,000 is available at the present time. Such crossing the tracks at Delaware street, the | being the case, the secretary of the treasury has decided that he has no authority even to accept the decree, which would be in effect entering into a contract binding the government to pay out $359,000, the difference between $250,000 and $609,000. Conher skull was fractured. It is charged that | gress having made provision for a building the train which struck plaintiff's vehicle to cost $1,250,000, can easily be prevailed was behind time and was running thirty-five miles or more an hour. The plaintiff upon to give specific authorization for the acceptance of the site and the payment of the full amount demanded. This can be done by joint resolution, which can be introduced in the Senate by either Senator Fairbanks or Beveridge and in the House by the Indianapolis member, Mr. Overstreet. Only a few days ought to be consumed in securing the necessary consent of Congress, and it is the belief at the Treasury Department that the matter can be closed up before the William Harris, burglary of the storeroom Clarence Green, entering the storeroom of Journal correspondent yesterday afterin the department, and the holidays. Assistant Secretary Taylor, who has personal jurisdiction over the office of the supervising architect, informed the noon that the plans for the Indianapolis building would be drawn struction would be under the direct charge of the supervising architect. Secretary Taylor said that he was strongly in favor of using only a part of the site which would be required, and of so locating the building that what remained could be sold by the government. He could see no use in retaining permanent possession of more land than was actually needed, and was of the opinion that the government would be doing a good thing to reimburse itself in part for the outlay for land. Until a decision is reached upon this point work upon plans will not be commenced. Mr. Taylor did not state when the department's mind would be made up, but intimated that on the general principle that it is not wise to count chickens before they are hatched, decision might be reserved until the ground was actually in the possession of the government. If Congress acts in compliance with the department's plans and suggestions, and gives authority for the payment of $600,000, there will be no necessity for haste in disposing of the old postoffice building. Secretary Taylar thinks the government should get more than the $400,000 offered for the old structure and the real estate upon which it stands, and is in no mood to recommend a sale at that figure. He admitted that there had been no offer of an amount in excess of $400,000, but seems to have little doubt that better terms could be secured. dan, perjury; Moses Sapierie, receiving CITY NEWS NOTES.

The Champagne Product.

Philadelphia Press. It is a well-known fact that there is more champagne drunk in one year than the champagne district of France can produce in It is, however, not so generally known which countries consume most of the French output. The statistics for the year ending Oct. 15 last have just been made public. These show that the district in ques-tion exported 19,680,000 litres, valued at 1,327,552 francs, in that period. purchased more than half the total. Belgium was second-a big way from England-with 2,778,000 litres, and Germany was third with 1,859,000. The United States and Canada are grouped together. But even then they have to put up with 1,419,400 litres. Can this mean-? But, never mind, it most probably means only that we are true to California on the one hand, and Kentucky on the other. It might be that the Dreyfus case was to blame, were it not that Russia, that "ally" of France, is satisfied with a fifth place and 498,500 litres.

ARREST OF THREE OFFICERS IN II LINOIS CAUSES NO ALARM HERE.

Supreme Recorder T. B. Linn Thinks the Matter Will Be Amicably Adjusted-Cause of Trouble.

The arrest of three officers of Alpha Council of the Order of Chosen Friends at Peoria, Ill., Friday, charged with being officers of an illegal fraternal and beneficiary society, and the threat to arrest other officers who are transacting business of the order in Illinois, is causing no great concern to the home office of the order, which | St. Louis Republic.

This the Illinois authorities claimed would exempt the Order of Chosen Friends from the benefit of the Illinois statute applying to fraternal societies. At a recent session of the Supreme Council held in this city a few weeks ago the organization's by-laws were changed in conformity with the Illinois and Indiana laws on the subject, both being the "Fraternal Congress bill," and on Jan, 1 the supreme officers and on Jan. 1 the supreme officers will make formal application before the insurance authorities of Illinois. In order to comply with the spirit of the Illinois law the society has been soliciting no new business in the State since its attention was called to the law and will make no further propaganda until the adjustment is In Illinois the order has paid out $633,295 and has only received $621,033. Well-Dressed Woman. Philadelphia Record. Again we find ourselves needing so many new things that the great trouble is to dis cover where to begin. Whether to start at the foot as if we'd decided to scale the ladder of fame, or butterfly fashion, to begin at the top, which means a chapeau first, is a conclusion at which we are slow to arrive. So, perhaps, the proper caper is just to take them as we come to them. Indeed, there are tricks in buying as wel as in selling, and the woman who has arrived at the stage wherein she can take things coolly, recognize at a glance that which is suited to her needs and purse, and waste no thought nor time upon that which is not, is indeed to be envied. Let us consider a few of the things which will pass under her critical eye. One thing which she is bound to at least glance at is the splendid new silk pelisse. It is an elegant garment in black moire antique, trimmed with flounces of wide lace, and designed to be worn with a handsome skirt. Spangled ornaments catch down the lace, the arrangements on the waist part and the wrists being particularly graceful. It is fitted in the back, two box plaits being let in below the waist Under these the flounces on the skirt disappear. The woman who has use for this garment realizes its worth instant-What more satisfactory for getting into hurriedly, for a drive, say? Of course, this woman keeps her eye on the fringe. The latest, by the way, is filet fringe. As its name implies, it is a net, but (though its name fails to suggest it) it is composed of silk tape (both net and fringe proper) nearly as fine as thread. This really makes it more graceful than the usual round cord or thread. In addition to the regular fringe there are enticing pieces ready to clap on to a dress. Whole overskirts with fringe on the edge, and a walst piece to match, come at from $25 up. No fringe want has gone neglected. For those who admire it all but the dangling ends there's fringeless fringe, as it were; fringe all but the ends. Then there's fetching netted stuff to match from which podices may be formed. It costs $10 a yard and is one yard wide. It requires quite a knack to knot fringe into the ends of the scarf which so gracefully finish the shepherdess hat. The fancy waists come under everybody's critical eye, for waists we must have. The new ones are tempting bits, and she who hesitates is really lost in the sea of loveliness. A very fetching one, tucked all over, is in the new pinky shade of old rose and is set off with stiched bands two shades deeper. These bands are hemstitched on. A broad shoulder effect is obtained by letting loose the edge of the plaited collar. Now don't say shoulder effects are small; they only pretend to be. If you notice, you'll see that there's always something that coun-teracts that slim effect. In black and white stripe comes a modish waist. It is tucked, the black stripe serving for the tucks, and then it is made up bias. An odd and interesting effect is managed by rows of stitching an inch apart, the rows holding the tucks up and down, alternately. The edge of the stock and wrists is of tucked tur-

and is low enough to display a yoke and stock of steel embroidered white satin. Such a millinereal craze is there for feathers and breasts that whole hats are formed of this softly rich plumage. Though it is usual to add a twist of velvet, satin antique, or gauze, the hats are really complete, and cost $7 to $17. Grebe is chosen in most every case, the colors of this beautiful marine bird ranging from brown to white. It is even dyed black. Unlike the guinea hen hat, that of grebe is minus the head which in truth makes it look as if t had been looted from the Academy of Natural Sciences or a convenient barnyard. The promenade will be an interesting study with hens and geese on the girls' heads. Perhaps they'll be accommodating enough to "extend the course" by adding other specimens such as cats, small dogs, bats, rabbits and the like.

MARK TWAIN'S DEBUT. A Humorous Incident of the Humorist's Invasion of the East.

Mark Twain, in November Century. In those early days I had already published one little thing ("The Jumpin Frog") in an Eastern paper, but I did no consider that that counted. In my view, a person who published things in a mere newspaper could not properly claim recognition as a literary person; he must rise away above that; he must appear in a magazine. He would then be a literary person; also, he would be famous-right away, These two ambitions were strong upon me. This was in 1866. I prepared my tion, and then looked around for the best magazine to go to glory in. I selected the most important one in New York. The contribution was accepted. I signed it "Mark Twain," for that name had some currency on the Pacific coast, and it was my idea to spread it all over the world, now, at this one jump. The article appeared in the December number, and I sat up a month waiting for the January num-ber; for that one would contain the year's list of contributors, my name would be in it, and I should be famous and could give the banquet I was meditating. I did not give the banquet. I had not written the "Mark Twain" distinctly; it was not remember which. At any rate, I was not celebrated, and I did not give the banquet. I was a literary person, but that was all-a buried one; buried alive. My article was about the burning of the time, and I was in Honolulu when the fifcaptain who was a remarkable man, otherwise there would have been no survivors. He was a New Englander of the best sea-going stock of the old capable times—Capt. Josiah Mitchell. I was in the islands to write letters for the weekly edition of the Sacramento Union, a rich and influential daily journal which hadn't any use for them, but could afford to spend $20 a week for nothing. I had been in the islands several months when the survivors arrived. I was laid up in my room at the time and unable to walk Here was a great occasion to serve my journal and I not able to take advantage of it. Necessarily I was in deep trouble. But by good luck his excellency Anson Burlingame was there at the time on his way to take up his post in China, where he did such good work for the United States. He came and put me on a stretcher and had me carried to the hospital where the shipwrecked men were, and I never needed to ask a question. He attended to all of that him-

It is observed that men are more frequent sufferers from this disease than women, and men are more in the habit of sitting with legs crossed. The surged line of reasoning is as follows: "The babit of sitting with the legs crossed restricts the action of the digestive apparatus, especially of the lower intestine, and causes stagnation of the contents and the stretching of the opening of the vermiform appendix, making it possible for obstructions to reach the latter organ. The appendix is portion where the small intestine joins the larger testine, and there is always some half-digested food in the caecal crossing the legs, the undigested food passes into the vermiform appendix and sets up an inflammation.
